

Writing your heritage feedback on Gillman Barracks

The HIA form closes Thursday 6 August 2026 at 6pm | form.gov.sg/69f078611d94834b4d48a308

First, the one rule that matters

Write in your own words. Ten people independently raising similar concerns carry far more weight than ten identical messages, because it shows genuine, widely felt concern rather than one text passed around. Use the prompts below as a starting point, not a script. Even three sentences of your own count.

A simple structure

- Who you are. Your connection to the place: how long you have lived nearby, how often you visit, what you use it for.
- What the heritage means to you, specifically. Name places rather than speaking in general terms. The 1935 barracks along Lock Road, among the last of their kind. The Preston Road garrison houses and the old Alexandra School cluster. The galleries and the arts precinct that grew up since 2012. A place where heritage, arts and nature exist together, which is rare in Singapore.
- What you are asking for. Be concrete. See below.
- Keep it courteous and factual. The reader is a civil servant collating feedback. A reasonable tone gets your point into the summary report.

Asks worth making

- Name the buildings to be retained, so the commitment to all of exceptional significance and most of high significance can be checked against a list.
- Keep the retained clusters as public, accessible places rather than fenced or privatised spaces, so the arts and community life can continue.
- Where a building cannot be kept, document it fully before demolition and publish that record.
- Keep the connection between the heritage buildings and the forest setting, since the two together are what make the character of the place.

Things worth mentioning if they are true for you

Visits to exhibitions or the galleries. Walks that pass the barracks buildings. Children or grandchildren who know the place. Events you have attended there. What the area felt like before and after the 2022 rejuvenation. Any family connection to the site's military past.

The environmental form is separate and also closes on 6 August at 6pm:
